MARY HEFFERNAN

FROM CONCRETE TO COWBOY BOOTS

WITH
MARY HEFFERNAN

To answer your question, yes there are actually five Marys who work tirelessly behind the scenes at Five Marys Farms. MaryFrances, MaryMarjorie, MaryJane, MaryTeresa, and of course the original: Mary Heffernan. But on a farm in rural California is not where our story began.

Unlike most ranchin' stories, this one began in the big city, in a place that couldn't be more different than Fort Jones: Silicon Valley. In the early 2000s, Mary Heffernan, a lifelong entrepreneur, had started a restaurant with her husband Brian Heffernan, a full-time lawyer working in the area.

As the two dove deep into the restaurant industry, they felt a responsibility to sustainably source their meat—but as supply chain issues mounted, their patience waned. So they thought: let's do it ourselves. What started as a weekend endeavor quickly turned into a full-time job, and the ranching lifestyle quickly drew them in. Before they knew it, they were full-time ranchers living in Fort Jones, California.

"Most people thought we were crazy," Mary said. "They didn't understand how we could leave what we worked so hard for."

The two sold their restaurant, Brian stopped practicing law (though he's quick to note he still pays his dues each year), and they dove headfirst into a world that required a different kind of grit than they were used to.

"The first year was really hard, the first two years were hard—it's still hard," Mary remembered. Brian, consistently amazed at his wife's drive and determination, concurred.

"I've got a great business partner in my wife. We're not quitters. We push hard, and we always say it—nothing's easy."

Today, the husband and wife duo not only sell custom meat boxes shipped across the continental United States, own and operate Five Marys Burgerhouse and write cookbooks, but they have also started up a one-of-a-kind learning experience dubbed the "M5 Ranch School". The impact they've had on their adopted town has been tangible.

While leaving the hustle and bustle of the city to the countryside might seem like a big leap, there's one common thread that keeps them going: hard work. Whether it's putting in 12-hour days on the ranch or behind the computer, Mary Heffernan does it all—and the rest of the Heffernan clan follows suit. No matter how hard some days may seem, the Heffernans are all-in on off-road livin'.

"THE HARDEST PART ABOUT
LIVING LIKE THIS IS THAT THERE'S NO DAYS OFF."

"You can really find new and progressive ways to grow your business no matter where you live, which is pretty amazing. I don't have any regrets."

— Mary Heffernan

WRANGLING THE WEST

WITH
CLICK THOMPSON

Few people can capture the raw emotion of Western Sports like Christopher "Click" Thompson. We sat down to chat about his beginnings in photography, some stand-out moments, and what's next.

Q: Where does the story of Click Thompson begin? It's a long and winding road. Most people know me as Chris Thompson. I was born in Japan, but both of my parents are from Virginia and that's where I grew up.

Q: When did you first pick up a camera? In my sophomore year of high school, photography was part of our art curriculum. We learned to shoot on film, which taught me a lot about the process. You had to know exactly what you were doing because every shot counts. That's where it all started, just shooting people, whatever I could.

Q: You've gone on the record saying you wake up with images in your head that are yet to be taken. Can you expand on that? One time I worked with a guy, and he would always say, "Put the camera where your eye can't be." While shooting rodeos, I realized that you don't have as much access, so a lot of trying to capture unique or dynamic images is knowing where you can be and can't be.

Q: Did you grow up idolizing the Western Sports world? Or have you grown to love it through your photography? Kind of both. I was really inspired by my grandfather. He was a hustler. He didn't wear a cowboy hat or anything, but he had that same motivation, same kind of grind. I didn't grow up riding horses or getting on bulls, I just fell in love with the romance of it all. I was a fan first, then I found a way to take my skills and get involved.

"ACTION AND CHAOS ALWAYS KEEP ME FIRED UP."

Q: You've gotten to photograph some big moments—like Chase Outlaw's comeback. Can you tell me about that experience?

Three months after he had gotten his whole face surgically reconstructed, he was able to qualify and compete in the PBR Finals which is a huge feat in itself. One year after his injury, I got asked to photograph "The Last Cowboy Standing," which is one of the most physically demanding events of the year. To come back a year later to that event—that is probably one of the greatest mental feats in bull riding history, period! That was cool seeing him like that, and obviously he's grown as a person after that wreck.

Q: What keeps you going in the photography world? There's more photos to capture, more places to go. I want to leave a legacy and be remembered. I've traveled to places I've never thought I'd ever go to. So to continue to get those opportunities and create those kinds of images is pretty, pretty awesome.

CHANGING THE GAME

CASEY LAVERE
ERIC CHESSER AND
BRIAN MCELREA

As much as time, preparation, expertise and determination are factors when you're hunting big game, a lot of success can be attributed to being in the right place at the right time. For the Hushin' crew, being in the right place at the right time has done just that—and more.

It all started in 2013, when after a few years of creating YouTube content, Casey LaVerre met Eric Chesser. An avid hunter, Chesser saw the potential in the new platform for hunting content.

About the same time, the duo teamed up with Brian McElrea, who urged the two to take their efforts in content creation a step further. McElrea soon left his corporate job to take over the brand and back-end business affairs. And with that, Hushin' was born.

Fast forward to 2021, and the crew has pioneered a new form of content in the world of hunting and fishing. Perhaps most importantly, they're taking it a step further.

"We want to leverage our platform in the most positive way we possibly can," McElrea said. "And that's where we came up with the three pillars of Hushin'."

"The first was inspiring new hunters and anglers to get out in the field. The second was to raise more awareness about hunting, access, conservation, habitat type issues. And then the third was just to give back, however we could."

One of the crew's biggest accomplishments was bringing longtime follower Daniel Roberts, who has lived his entire life in a wheelchair, out on a hunt. The crew documented the experience of Daniel getting his first elk, then raised money to purchase him a brand new wheelchair with off-road capabilities.

While the sky's the limit for the Hushin' crew, the team stays grounded, with an emphasis on keeping their content family focused to provide a safe space for all to dive headfirst into what off-road livin' is all about.

"I love to hear that families sit down every night and watch our videos together. If the kids aren't getting excited about it, there's going to be no one to pass the torch to one day," LaVere said.

"I LOVE TO HEAR THAT FAMILIES SIT DOWN EVERY NIGHT AND WATCH OUR VIDEOS TOGETHER. IF THE KIDS AREN'T GETTING EXCITED ABOUT IT, THERE'S GOING TO BE NO ONE TO PASS THE TORCH TO ONE DAY,".

"If we can inspire a new generation of people to love the outdoors and the hunting and fishing community as much as we have—that kind of speaks for itself."

TOOLS OF THE TRADE

ALEX TEMPLETON

Put simply, there aren't many people like Alex Templeton. A third-generation farmer and rancher, her passion for living the land, fostered through a lifetime of hard work, has led to where she is today. When she's not breaking down barriers in the world of farming and ranching, she's fine-tuning her bowhunting skills. It's tough not to ask Alex every question from A to Z, but this time we kept it to hunting and Alex's top four accessories for when she goes out for a hunt.

"I CONSTANTLY FIND MYSELF OUT IN THE WOODS IN THE DARK DURING HUNTING SEASON."

1. Winch

I rely pretty heavily on my Defender during hunting season, and having a winch on the front gives me extra confidence that I'll be able to get in and out of tight places. I also use my winch to haul out what I've harvested from some inaccessible places. From ranch work to deer season, I'm sure glad to have it!

2. Light Bar

I constantly find myself out in the woods in the dark during hunting season. Driving to and from my stand, tracking a deer and field dressing after a successful hunt are all times I'm glad to have a light bar.

3. LinQ Tool and Gun Holder

While in the field, properly handling my gun is extremely important. My rifles fit perfectly in the gunstock-shaped mold of the LinQ Gun Holder, so they stay safe and secure.

4. LinQ 4.5 Gal Sport Bag

I'm obsessed with keeping my gear organized, and the LinQ Sport Bag is a great home for my rangefinder, binoculars, an extra bow release, and other must-haves.

HOW TO

KEEP USING YOUR MACHINE THIS WINTER

When the temperature drops and the others go indoors, you get ready to tackle the jobs, adventures, and rides you can only experience during the winter. So we've put together a guide on how you can keep using your Can-Am ATV or Side-by-Side when winter comes along—and when it takes extra grit to keep going.

KEEP THE RIDE ALIVE

Enclosed Cab

Trail riding has no off-season. Get protection from the elements with enclosed cabs, which are available on several Can-Am models. Choose from a wide selection of add-ons such as doors, roofs, windshields and all around wind protection for your Defender or Commander, and make it easy to stand up to frigid wind and weather.

HEATED GRIPS/SEATS

Being cold on a winter ride is a thing of the past. Grab hold of heated grips and seats this winter season and stay cozy in harsh conditions. They're available on the Outlander and Renegade models.

DON'T STOP EXPLORING

Apache Tracks

Whether you're riding in deep snow, trail riding or hauling heavy loads, Apache track kits are here to answer the call, no matter the terrain. Take a ride down the path less travelled and you'll see first-hand how we've adapted our world-renowned snowmobile technology. Designed by Can-Am for your Can-Am vehicle, Apache Track Kits are matched to your engine output, chassis setup and speedometer, and they work with DPS power steering for perfect control, anywhere. They're available on all ATV and Side-by-Side models.

WORK DOESN'T STOP

ProMount Plow

Things might get a bit tougher, but that doesn't mean the job is done once the snow starts to fall. ProMount plows are the easiest to install in the industry, and they get the job done in any weather. Install them on the Defender, Commander, Outlander or Renegade models.
